

Education and Culture DG

Lifelong Learning Programme

The country needs soldiers

This game is to be played outdoors, where there is a lot of room for running.

The more participants there are, the more fun the game is. All the children are divided into 2 groups which are facing each other. In each group, all the members hold hands very tightly, forming a human wall.

One group says TARA,TARA,VREM OSTASI='The country needs soldiers' while the other asks: 'Who do you need?' The first group then says 'We want...(the name of the child whom they want from the other group)' This child has to break the human wall in front of him/ her in order to remain in his/her team. He/She does it by running towards the wall. If he/she does not break the human wall, he/she will become part of the opponent team. If he/she breaks the wall, he/she will remain in their initial group.

Then the other group does the same: they say TARA,TARA,VREM OSTASI='The country needs soldiers' while the other asks: 'Who do you need?' And it continues in the same way as in the first round.

The rounds continue until one of the groups loses all its members, ending up with only one child.